

Rabbi Steve Fox, Chief Executive of CCAR:

“For decades, the Reform movement has stood strong for universal human rights. No matter from where refugees hail or whose borders they seek shelter within, the CCAR believes that all who flee violence and persecution should be able to find a safe haven. As it states in the Israeli Declaration of Independence, Israel ‘will ensure complete equality of social and political rights to all its inhabitants irrespective of religion.’ We stand by the conventions established by the United Nations - and our own resolutions - calling for a guarantee of basic rights for those seeking refuge.”
